Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000.

Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Bailey (US 5,090,904).

In figures 5 and 6, the Bailey patent shows a gas inlet port, a liquid inlet port, a jet delivery nozzle having a gas discharge nozzle and a liquid discharge nozzle.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2-9, 11-21, and 23-35 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bailey (US 5,090,904) in view of Muller (US 5,022,414) or Liang et al. (US 5,012,797; hereafter Liang).

The Bailey patent is silent as to suction means to remove debris from the surgical area. However, designing an abrading apparatus with suction capabilities would have been considered conventional in the art as evidenced by the teachings of Muller or Liang.

The Muller and Liang patents demonstrate the conventionality of designing an abrading instrument with a suction port, a suction source, and suction means to remove tissue and debris from the area of operation. Based on the above observations, for a person of ordinary skill in the art, modifying the Bailey patent with suction means, as taught by Muller or Liang, would have been considered obvious in view of the proven conventionality of this enhancement, and moreover, because the suctioning of debris clears the area of operation allowing the operator to more accurately apply the abrading apparatus to tissue.

In relation to the disclosed gas and liquid source pressures, it is important to recognize that the design of these pressures is based on the desired nozzle velocity based on well known nozzle flow rate equations. Additionally, the desired nozzle output velocity is limited to the safety limitations imposed by the characteristics of human tissue. Therefore, these pressures provide no patentable weight.
